Interview Questions

1. What prompted you to write this book? Why now?
2. Can you take us on your personal journey that demonstrated the need to distinguish between truth vs. a false gospel?
3. What cultural shifts have you observed that suggest an evolution away from traditional Christianity and toward progressive Christianity?
4. What is progressive Christianity and what are some key beliefs that define it?
5. What changes are you seeing in the church that point toward more progressive theology, and where are you encountering these things?
6. You had an inner-circle experience in a church that went from an evangelical Christian worldview to a progressive Christian worldview. In retrospect, can you share some of the red flags that presented themselves throughout this experience?
7. What are some key tactics for people to use to determine if their church is demonstrating progressive leanings and proclaiming "another gospel"?
8. What is "deconstruction," and why is it relevant to the discussion surrounding progressive Christianity?
9. Why do so many Christians find progressive Christianity so attractive?
10. How do we get to the "unmistakable truth"?
11. What is one lesson you'd like readers to apply to their own faith journey?
12. How do you hope your message will resonate with your readers?
